PROSPECTUS

OF THE
Weekly Newspaper, to be published SOUTHERN MECHANIC, in the City of Vicksburg.

EDITED BY JOHN J. HAMILTON.

CUSTOM, that most potent all-law-giver, has imposed upon every individual who offers a new periodical to the patronage of the public the necessity of giving something in the form of what is commonly termed a prospectus, containing a programme of the nature of the undertaking in which he is about to embark, and a brief exposition of the views entertained by him in relation to the subjects of which he proposes to treat.

In compliance with this well established usage, we will endeavor to explain as concisely as possible what is intended to be the character of the paper the publication of which we are about to commence.

The SOUTHERN MECHANIC will, as its name denotes, be devoted to the support of the interests, the advocacy of the rights, and the improvement of the mental and physical condition of those who have devoted their lives to the pursuit of the mechanic arts, as well as of all others who obey the scriptural injunction that man should "earn his bread by the sweat of his brow." In the pursuit of these objects we shall, however, studiously avoid every thing like attempting to infringe upon the rights or oppose the success of those who are engaged in pursuits different from those which occupy the attention of that class of the community for whose special benefit our enterprise is undertaken. The time has gone by when intelligent men could be induced to believe that the interests of the laboring classes of society were opposed to those of the rest of their fellow citizens. Or if such an opinion is still entertained at this enlightened day, we are proud to say that ours are not among the number of those minds who feel and acknowledge its influence. We are firmly convinced that the interests of the great mass of Mechanics are perfectly compatible and intimately identified with "the greatest good of the greatest number"—and we have but little faith in the honesty and intelligence of those who would endeavor to propagate an opposite opinion.

With the personal rancor and soulless party hostility which characterizes and disfigures so many of the periodicals of the present day, we desire to have as little connexion as possible. The support of principles, and not the elevation of office of particular men, is and we trust ever will be, our end and aim; but should we ever become so recreant as to desert the standard of truth and justice and enlist under the banner of unprincipled man worship, we shall doubtless incur, as we shall deserve, the heavy penalty of the withdrawal of all confidence in us by the honest and intelligent of every sect and party.

W. F. STANTON,
Publisher and Proprietor.

TERMS.

The SOUTHERN MECHANIC will be printed on a double medium sheet, with good type, published every Saturday morning, at FIVE DOLLARS per annum, payable in advance, or SIX DOLLARS if payment is deferred to the end of the year. It is intended to issue the first number on Saturday, the 6th of January, next.

THE WESTERN MONTHLY MAGAZINE AND LITERARY JOURNAL.

CONDUCTED BY W. D. Gallagher and J. B. Marshall. The editor of "Western Literary Journal" having, in connection with Jas. B. Marshall, Esq., become proprietor of the "Western Monthly Magazine," the two works have been united, and will hereafter be published, simultaneously, at Cincinnati and Louisville. Every arrangement, being now made for issuing the Magazine punctually, and in a style equal to its Eastern contemporaries, it is trusted that the union here announced will meet the approbation of the patrons generally of both publications. The readers of the "Journal" will find increased attractions in the work, from the contributions of the correspondents of the "Magazine," and those of the "Magazine" will not only find the same, from the writings of the correspondents of the "Journal," but will also get a larger amount of reading matter than they have hitherto received. Not in the spirit of boasting, but to give the patrons of the "Magazine and Journal" an idea of what they may expect, from month to month, as the numbers appear, the following list of occasional correspondents and regular contributors, is given:

The Western Monthly Magazine and Literary Journal, is published during the first week of each month. Its general contents are (Tales, Essays, Poetry, Sketches of American Scenery, Character and manners, Reviews and Literary Notices of New Works in the several departments of Literature and Science, Biographical Sketches, particularly of the Pioneers, of the West, Narratives of Border of Adventures, Statistical Papers, &c. &c. Each number of the Magazine contains from 72 to 80 octavo pages, and the year is divided into two volumes of about 450 pages each.

TERMS.—$3.00 per annum, payable at the time of subscribing—$3.50, if payment be delayed six months—$4.00, if delayed over that time. Number one, of the New Series of this work, has just been published.

Exchanges, Correspondents, & persons wishing to subscribe, will please address to the editors at Louisville Ky.

College of Teachers.

THE seventh annual meeting of the Western Literary Institute and College of professional Teachers, will be held in Cincinnati, during the first week of October next, commencing on Monday, 2nd.

A series of Lectures will be delivered, and a number of Reports presented by committees, appointed at the last annual meeting. It is expected that the coming session will be one of no ordinary interest. In addition to the customary Reports, much interesting information may be expected on the state of education, both at home and abroad, from Professor Calvin E. Stowe recently returned from Europe, and Samuel Lewis, Superintendent of Common Schools in Ohio.

The Western Literary Institute is designed to embrace Teachers and other friends of education throughout the South and West. All such persons are therefore, desired to consider this advertisement as a personal invitation to attend. It is also desirable that all literary associations annually send delegates; and, when practicable, reports upon the state of education within their respective limits.

Editors throughout the Mississippi Valley, are requested to give the above a few insertions, and upon forwarding their address, they will receive a copy of the Transactions, soon as published.

By order of the Executive Committee:
